IMReady Launches Groundbreaking CPT Program for Security Officers in the Education Sector

Summer 2025 — IMReady is proud to announce the launch of a first-of-its-kind continuing professional training (CPT) and perishable skills program (PSP) tailored specifically for school security officers working in the California education sector. Modeled after California POST and Bureau of Security Investigative Services (BSIS) training, this highly specialized suite is designed to build upon SB-390 and directly address high-risk tasks that often result in workers' compensation claims and district liability.

This program delivers practical, scenario-based instruction enhancing training and experience while also fostering a safe, secure and peaceful environment.

The Existing Training Gap

California law requires school security officers to obtain a SB-390 certification covering general responsibilities, but it does not mandate further training in high-risk areas likely to result in workplace injuries or district liability. Additionally, it does not specifically address critical district policies that guide officers in the performance of their duties on campus.

No Other Comparable Program in The State

Our training is uniquely focused on the real-world challenges faced by school security officers. We target the critical areas that SB 390 does not cover, including, but not limited to:

- Conflict De-Escalation
- Defensive Tactics

- Report Writing
- Use of Restraints
- Search and Seizure
- Tactical Med
- Supervision of a Security Force

IMReady CPT and PSP courses can be provided ala cart or combined in an academy format, with flexible durations ranging from half-day sessions to multi-day programs.

Each course is customized to address the specific challenges and concerns of the district. Additionally, fully customized training modules can be developed to meet the unique needs of each individual district.
